VOL. IX, NO. 39 | 16 pages | CARMEL VALLEY, CALIF. | 15c | September 30, 1970

THIS IS HOW A MAJOR FIRE looks from the air -- flames shooting through dense smoke in dozens of locations, leaving death and charred devestation in their wake. The fire started on a hillside near the SPCA and burned more than 600 acres before it was brought under control. Power lines were toppled, with service to Carmel Valley impaired Saturday afternoon and again Saturday night for several hours. One fireman was injured and one house destroyed by the fire, which, terrifying as it was, was almost miniscule compared to what is taking place in Southern California.

THIS VIEW OF SATURDAY'S FIRE is from the top of the Grade, looking north-east. Salinas is barely visible through the haze in the background. Scores of firemen, including 18 from the Carmel Valley fire department, and borate bombers operated by the State Division of Forestry performed a herculean task to keep flames from devouring homes along the Grade.

Strict no-burning edict now in effect in Carmel Valley

Carmel Valley Fire Chief Chip Collins announced this week that no burning of any kind is permitted in Carmel Valley until further notice.

This means no incinerators, no barbecues, no fireplaces, no outdoor cigarette smoking.

He also warned owners of mini bikes not to ride on dirt trails through underbrush, whether on private or public property.

"Those bikes could set off a terrific fire," Collins said. "We're telling parents to keep the kids and their bikes at home. If they have to ride, it should be only on a regular paved road."

Collins said the department is responding immediately to any report of smoke, even from a fireplace chimney.

"It's a case of getting there right now or having a fire that could go from here to King City," he said.

There was just one fire involving the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department last week, which was one more than was wanted. That, of course, was atop Laureles Grade. Eighteen men, two pumping trucks and two pick-up trucks from the Valley responded to the mutual aid call Saturday afternoon and battled the fierce blaze for four hours. They were later commended by the Salinas Rural Fire Department and the State Forestry Service for their outstanding performance under extremely difficult and hazardous circumstances.

TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

Mr. Read did not tell it like it is in his letter to the Editor last week. Mr. Read implied Mr. Branson appointed me to the countywide committee to draft a new hillside conservation ordinance. Mr. Read is in error. Mr. Branson's appointment to the committee was a representative chosen by the CVPOA and Morden Buck. My appointment to the committee was made by the 1970 chairman of the Board of Supervisors, Loren Smith, and I understand the appointment was made without Mr. Branson's knowledge.

Mr. Read also said in his letter I have boasted publicly of having organized the opposition which defeated the Hillside Conservation Ordinance. Mr. Read is wrong on this point, too. I never made such statements. On the contrary, I stated publicly in open meetings, I would not have opposed the Hillside Conservation Ordinance recommended by the County Planning staff and the Planning Commission, if the CVPOA had not insisted upon amending the ordinance with their 3 totally unreasonable and confiscatory amendments.

I sincerely believe the countywide committee will come forward with a recommended hillside conservation ordinance which will provide the needed controls for hillside development, which will insure aesthetic treatment, provide the necessary incentives to make development economically feasible and protect basic property rights of all property owners.

Mr. Robert G. Read

Dear Mr. Read:

I was shocked to read in the Carmel Valley Outlook, a reprint of your letter to the Editor concerning the appointment of Mr. Milton "Skip" Marquard as a member of the newly formed County Advisory Committee charged with the responsibility of formulating a suggested Hillside Conservation Ordinance.

First I would like to call your attention to the fact that the ordinance is to apply to the entire Monterey County and not just the Carmel Valley. To achieve this objective, two committee members were appointed by each Supervisor. Appointments to the Committee were made by four Supervisors, and at that time I stated as Chairman I would reserve my appointments in an effort to balance the committee membership. It was my strong feeling that if a comprehensive job was to be done, all segments of our County should be represented by interested people devoted to objectively studying the problems involved. After reviewing the appointments made by the other Supervisors it became obvious to me that both the large landholders, and the local land developers, were not represented. The appointment of Mr. Robert Flause represents the large land owners and Mr. Marquard represents the local developers. Without these interests being represented on the committee I felt strongly that we would have an unbalanced study group. These two members were appointed by me without consultation with any other Supervisor. Mr. Willard Branson had no part in my appointments.

I believe all members serving on this committee are sincere dedicated people who will consciously work toward the desired objective under Mr. Morden Buck's capable leadership as Chairman.

Sincerely,
LOREN E. SMITH, Chairman
Board of Supervisors

To the Editor:

I have received a letter from Mr. Loren Smith, Chairman, Board of Supervisors which informs me that he was shocked when he read my letter to the editor with regard to the appointment of Mr. Skip Marquard to the Hillside Conservation Committee. Mr. Smith advised me that after reviewing the appointments made by the other supervisors:

"it became obvious to me that both the large landowners and the local developers were not represented. The appointment of Mr. Robert Flause represents the large land owners and Mr. Marquard represents the local developers. I felt strongly that we would have an unbalanced study group. These other two members were appointed by me without consultation with any other Supervisor. Mr. Willard Branson had no part in my appointments".

Why doesn't Mr. Smith tell it like it really is? Why did Mr. Smith go out of his district and appoint Mr. Marquard and Mr. Flause? Surely as a matter of courtesy he must have asked Mr. Branson if he had any objections to the appointment of Mr. Marquard who lives and works in Mr. Bransons' district.

This is like it really is Mr. Smith. Your Hillside Conservation Committee is packed with developers of one sort or the other. Two of these developers, Mr. Marquard and Mr. Flause have boasted publicly that they helped organize the defeat of the HC ordinance the last time it was brought before the Board of Supervisors. The HC concept was and is designed to protect the slopes of Carmel Valley. The last ordinance proposed even had a map to show the area of concern in the Carmel Valley. You call my attention to the fact that the ordinance legally applies to the entire Monterey County. Mr. Smith, morally I think you know that the ordinance was and is to apply to Carmel Valley and that really the rest of the county has little concern with what is done in Carmel Valley. Mr. Smith what comes first: the property rights of hundreds of small property owners who live in Carmel Valley, or the financial interests of a few developers?

Sincerely,
ROBERT G. READ

To Whom it May Concern;
if anybody.

Are there any honest people left who are working for the people who pay their salaries in—or out of government?

Let's take a small town, say Carmel Valley, and an issue, such as banning trailers. Sept. 9th Outlook, a Carmel Valley legal newspaper, (is delivered by mail to my box on Thursdays sometime between noon and three o'clock—if I am lucky.) stated that "The matter (trailers) comes up for hearing by the County Planning Commission tomorrow" which has already passed by the time I get my paper! It had been opposed to such an extent that it had to be "put over for a further hearing on November 12" according to the Sept. 16th Outlook. Sept. 23rd Outlook states that "Yesterday Supervisor Branson asked the County Board of Supervisors to adopt an interim ordinance prohibiting the use of mobile homes or trailers as living units in Carmel Valley" AND IT WAS PASSED!

My questions are these, and may be answered by anyone that I help pay the salary of,

1) Why weren't the hearings on this, and other matters affecting Carmel Valley, made public in advance—in the Outlook?

2) What happened to the Nov. 12th hearing?

3) Why do some public servants work in such an underhanded manner; or so it would seem to some poor slobs who are paying the bills?

4) If this ordinance was honest and aboveboard, why was it handled in such an underhanded manner?

5) Who, specifically, does this ordinance benefit? The land developer or the individual property owners of Carmel Valley?

MR. AND MRS. LINCOLN LIBBY
Hitchcock Canyon
Carmel Valley

Editor's Note:

..The Planning Commission posted notices about the proposed trailer ordinance on telephone posts in Carmel Valley on July 28. These notices are written in legal zoning jargon, and the Outlook has repeatedly requested that future notices of this type include a simple statement of explanation. The legal notice for the trailer hearing ran in the Monterey Peninsula Herald on Wednesday, Aug. 26. The Outlook has tried for almost two years, without success, to get all legal notices pertaining to Carmel Valley published in the Outlook. We will continue to work with Supervisor Willard T. Branson in an effort to get the Planning Commission staff and all other County officials to run notices about Carmel Valley in the only paper published in and for Carmel Valley.

The Planning Commission will still hold a hearing on a permanent trailer ordinance on Nov. 12. The interim ordinance passed by the supervisors is just that—a temporary, 90-day ordinance that restricts, but doesn't prohibit, trailers and mobile homes. Supervisor Branson felt the ordinance was essential to prevent a sudden influx of trailer homes into the Valley until the entire matter is discussed publicly. This was done on short notice, after the Planning Commission delayed final action, but it was not "underhanded."

Finally, the Outlook is printed Tuesday afternoons. The paper is in post office boxes by 10 a.m. Wednesday, and is delivered to all route boxholders by early Wednesday afternoon. This is short notice for a Thursday hearing, but until legal notices are sent for advance publication in the Outlook, it is often all that can be done.

Petpourri

BY JUDITH EISNER

One of the most frightening things for a pet owner to contemplate is his pet being poisoned. It does happen—but it's reassuring to know that there aren't many sad, demented individuals who deliberately set out poison for the neighborhood animals.

Most cases of animal poisoning are attributable to the dog's curiosity and the owner's carelessness. Just as you must take precautions when there are young children about the house and garden, you have to be careful with pets. Puppies especially, seem to go through a phase when they'll eat—or attempt to eat—just about anything. Usually, nothing more serious ensues than an upset stomach, but sometimes they manage to swallow some pretty powerful stuff.

High on the list of pet-poisoners are household preparations such as drain cleaners (lye) and various pesticides including rat, ant, roach and gopher poisons. Puppies seem to find these poisons irrestible, although many times their intended victims do not.

One of the problems of suspected poisoning is that symptoms are the same for many other illness. They include indication of severe abdominal pain, panting, trembling, nausea, vomiting and possible collapse. Only in instances where you know the animal has eaten a specific poison—by finding the container, for example—can you administer the antidote for that particular poison.

Generally, poisonous substances have antidotes printed on the label. If you have the antidote in the house, you first make the dog vomit, then administer the antidote as directed, then rush him to the vet.

If the information is not printed on the label, you may be able to obtain antidote information by a phone call to the County Hospital, a local vet or a neighborhood pharmacist. No one will object to helping you save your pet's life. But don't get stuck making endless phone calls; just one may be worth the time, however.

Making a dog vomit is a relatively simple thing, though not recommended treatment for rugs and furnishings. Two of the best things to do the job are doses of mustard water or peroxide. Mustard water is made by mixing a teaspoonful of powdered mustard with about a quarter of a glass of warm water; peroxide solution is ordinary drugstore 3 percent hydrogen peroxide mixed with equal amounts of water. If you're out of mustard and peroxide, warm soapy or salty water may work.

Once you've mixed the solution, you force it down his throat until he vomits. Don't expect cooperation. It's a messy, unpleasant job. The dog may already be in pain from the action of the poison and isn't going to be too keen on swallowing quantities of any of the above solutions.

Now is no time for lip-pouch methods or coaxing. Get the dog's mouth open, pour in a quantity of fluid, close his mouth immediately and hold his muzzle up to make him swallow. You'll know when you've gotten enough into him when he vomits.

One precaution: in your anxiety and haste, don't drown the poor dog! When we say "pour in a quantity" we mean a quarter of a glass or less at a time; then repeat. Don't try to get him to swallow eight ounces at one gulp.

The one exception to the vomiting rule is when you know the dog has ingested either a corrosive acid or an alkali such as drain cleaner. In these cases, regurgitating these substances does more damage to the mouth and throat as they come out. Rapid neutralization of the poison is the answer. For acids, administer baking soda solution or milk of magnesia. Get in as much as you can. For alkalis, give vinegar or lemon juice. Then follow the "antidote" with milk, olive oil or raw egg white—as much as you can get into him.

In all other types of poisoning, once the dog has vomited, give him the specific antidote if you have it and then follow it with as much milk as he will take to soothe his stomach. Treat him for shock and get to a vet—fast.

If you can't find out what the specific antidote for the poison is, you should have in your medicine chest something known as "universal antidote." Any pharmacist can make up this powder for you and it will keep for years. It contains: one part light magnesium oxide; one part kaolin; one part tannic acid and two parts activated charcoal.

After the dog has vomited, mix four heaping teaspoonsful of universal antidote with a glass of warm water, stir well and get as much as possible into the dog. This solution isn't the ultimate answer to poisoning cases, but it is supposed to work well: the charcoal and kaolin absorb poisons and keep them from entering the system; tannic acid reacts with alkalis and magnesium oxide reacts with the stomach fluids to help empty the stomach.

If you have nothing prepared for emergencies, get as much milk and raw egg whites as you can into him. Then rush to the vet.

Even if the dog hasn't really been poisoned, universal antidote, milk, olive oil or raw egg whites won't harm him and may soothe an upset stomach, so don't be afraid to use them. Whatever the case, be sure to consult your vet as quickly as possible for professional treatment.

In cases where the animal has collapsed or is semi-conscious when you find him, you won't be able to get anything into him. All you can do is cover him and try to get to a vet immediately.

It's always best to be prepared for medical emergencies, with pets as with children. Many of the household remedies you regularly stock are useful in aiding pets; many can be fatal if used incorrectly or at all.

Next week, we'll discuss what you should have in a medicine chest for dogs.

Unusual demand for vocational training classes at Carmel High

BY PAT GRIFFITH

The vocational training program at Carmel High School has improved and expanded dramatically in the past three years, to the point where no new courses can be added without deleting something already scheduled.

In reporting on the district's vocational program last week, Supt. of Schools Harris Taylor told the school board that in the last three years the high school has added courses in power mechanics, graphics, photography, horticulture, homemaking, retail selling and marketing and fire science.

In addition, he said, there is an active student teacher aide program which allows students to assist at River, Middle and Carmelo schools as tutors or instructors in physical education and art.

The high school also has an elaborate work experience program, Taylor said, under which students may attend class part of the day and work at regular jobs the rest of the day.

"We have several hundred youngsters participating in this program," he said.

The high school has also added a full-time vocational counselor, who keeps up to date on apprentice programs being offered on the Monterey Peninsula and assists students who want employment.

"We have about all the programs we can handle," Taylor explained. "We're at the point where if we add more, it means having to take the child out of another elective."

As an example, he cited the re-introduction of homemaking classes this year which resulted in a drop of 125 in art classes.

NURSERY, TOO

When the district's new bus compound behind Middle School is completed, Taylor said about half an acre will be set aside for a green house to develop a nursery. Horticulture students will be able to work there to raise plants for use at Carmel schools.

On top of all this, Taylor said the high school has courses in pottery, film making, wood shop, crafts, metal shop and auto mechanics, all of which can lead to future vocations.

About 200 students are currently enrolled in pottery courses, Taylor said, and several graduates have opened their own pottery studios on the Peninsula.

Taylor also reported that the Peninsula Regional Occupational Program (PROP), a cooperative effort jointly funded by the Carmel, Pacific Grove and Monterey Peninsula unified schools districts, recently spent the last of its funds which were authorized three years ago.

The Carmel school district contributed $18,000 to PROP, which studied occupational needs on the Monterey Peninsula, sponsored Saturday morning vocational classes, provided general aptitude testing, promoted special pilot programs in schools (PROP gave $1000 to launch the graphics program at Carmel High School), and arranged an advanced placement program at Monterey Peninsula College under which 50 vocational students and 25 college preparatory students are able to attend special classes while they are still in high school.

Taylor noted that Carmel High School has more students enrolled in the advanced placement program than all other high schools put together. Carmel high students also turned out in the largest numbers for the Saturday morning vocational classes, which have been discontinued but may be reinstated in the future.

OTHER MATTERS

In other matters, the school board:

1. Discussed the costs of operating the adult school and decided against raising the tuition charge of $5 per course.

2. Authorized the school administration to obtain bids for a 10-foot chain link fence around the new bus compound. The fence is expected to cost about $6500, including gates.

3. Heard a report on the district's summer workshop program, in which almost half of all teachers participated. Two meetings have been planned to show the materials produced during the workshops. Elementary teachers will have their materials on display at Carmelo School from 4 to 5 p.m. today (Wednesday, Sept. 30) while teachers from Carmel Middle School and Carmel High School will discuss their summer projects from 3:45 to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 6, at Carmel Middle School.

At the next board meeting on Oct. 14, Dr. Richard Hawkins, the district's psychologist, will give a report on his activities, with special emphasis on the speech therapy program.

Charles R. Walkers celebrate their 35th wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Walker of mid-Carmel Valley entertained friends at an "open house" Sunday afternoon at their Palisade Drive home in celebration of their 35th wedding anniversary.

The Charles Walkers were married in Pacific Grove on September 27, 1935 and have lived on the Monterey Peninsula since that time, residing in Carmel Valley since 1946. Besides the many friends residing on the Monterey Peninsula who gathered to celebrate the Walker anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Westfall, formerly of Pacific Grove and Monterey, came from San Jose for the occasion.

Unique fire science class popular at Carmel High

BY JIM SHELTON

So you want to be a fireman?

Carmel High School is offering Fire Science, a course of basic fireman know-how, under the guidance of Paul Artellan, assistant fire chief at the Carmel Highlands Fire Protection District. California has many fire science classes at the college level, but it is quite unique on the high school level.

Artellan, with 15 years fire-fighting experience, is giving 28 students instruction in all aspects of firemanship from polishing fire-trucks to the controlling of brush-fires. With scheduled field-trips to most local fire-stations, the students will get first-hand experience with ladder-trucks, fire-boats, gas-masks, smoke and hose drills, etc.

In the classroom the students learn first-aid and fire-fighting theory with the aid of the newest films. On campus they supervise fire drills and room inspections, in preparation for the real thing.

Out of the 120 students in the history of the course, 17 are employed in fire service. The distribution favors the division of forestry with some participating as volunteers and one smoke-jumper.

The course offers every thing that a volunteer would encounter during a career in fire-fighting. It has become popular enough to earn a waiting list.

THE KIWANIS CLUB of Carmel Valley held its installation dinner party Saturday night at Rippling River Resort. Lt. Gov. Allen Lopes served as installing officer for the new president, Charles Strathmeyer and his new slate of officers. Dr. Alan Holine will be first vice president; Dr. Keith Howell, second vice president; Fred Fisher, secretary; Don Quinto, treasurer. The board of directors will be comprised of Erasimo Belleci, George Clifford, John Curran, Jack George, Otto Huebner, Henry Palmer and John Scroggs.

Awards were made to Charles Strathmeyer who promoted the First Carmel Valley Kiwanis Horse Show; Harold Fly, retiring secretary who so successfully edits the club's newsletter; and to Erasimo Belleci who had achieved a year's perfect attendance.

Retiring president Dr. Dean Campbell received a handsome gift of appreciation from the membership and his past president's pin before the 40 Kiwanians, their ladies, and guests in attendance.

New committee heads named by Strathmeyer include, Boys and Girls, Keith Howell; Vocational Guidance, Orville Rogers; Agriculture and Conservation, Rex White; Public & Business Affairs, Louis Gardner; International Relations, Fred Fisher; Support of Churches, Rev. Jim Brock; Education and Attendance, George Clifford; Interclub, Jack George; Program, Al Holine; Public Relations, Horse Show, Jack George; House, John Scroggs; Reception, Don McIntyre; Membership, Dean Campbell; and Don Quinto, Finance.

Conducting his first luncheon meeting on Tuesday at Rippling River Resort, Strathmeyer had the pleasure of introducing as his guest, his son, Jeff, who leaves soon to enroll at the University of California at Davis. Other guests were Herb Scales and Al Forbes of the Monterey Club.

GLENWOOD, their home on Esquiline Road has been reoccupied by Joan and Glen Low after a Valley absence of two years. With their children, Melinda, Roy and Glen Jr., the Robles Del Rio family were in Illinois for a year where Glen had a government grant to attend Southern Illinois University where he received training in media instruction and materials. Their second year was spent in Chico where he taught teacher training at Chico State. He is once again with the Monterey Unified School District assigned to Fitch Elementary at Fort Ord.

Joan and Glen would very much like to contact couples who share their interest in contract bridge and would enjoy an occasional social evening with bridge following a potluck dinner. SANDRA PRYER celebrated her seventh birthday at the Jamesburg ranch of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Tregea. Horseback riding, horse shoes, and eating a picnic lunch on the haystack in the barn were just a few of the highlights of an afternoon in the Upper Valley. The celebrant is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Pryer who were assisted with the party preparations by Sandy's sister, Nancy and Kathryn Blevins. Attending were Rosalind Tucker, Elizabeth Kern, Kelly Glendenning, Lori Mauzi, Michael Colvin, Hardwin Tucker and Katie Kern. Missed very much during the festivities was Diane McKenzie, who before the departure for the ranch was injured in a fall and required several stitches.

NOW IT'S OFFICIAL! The honor of presenting the president's pin went to Nancy Strathmeyer following her husband's installation at the Kiwani's dinner party held at the Rippling River Resort.

HANDSOME BROWN and gold coffee mugs filled with bouquets of zinnias from the Bundgard gardens on Live Oak Lane centered the tables and were awarded as table prizes at the September benefit bridge and canasta party sponsored by the Carmel Valley Community Chapel Guild. Mrs. Norman Bundgard was hostess for the affair held at the Fellowship Hall. Assisting were Mrs. Ralph Mills, Mrs. James Fitch, and Mrs. Lorraine Bolton of Salinas. Lemon Supreme pound cake with whipped cream, a dessert speciality of Shirley Mills, was the treat served during the coffee hour. Clever green burlap tallies made by the hostesses announced the winners to be, first in bridge, Ruth Wade; second in bridge, Ruth Stauffer; first in canasta, Flo Holm; and second in canasta, Tillie MacDonald. Table prizes were awarded to Sally Dane, Gene Fairchild, Kay Draper, Dorothy Ewing, Ruth Wade, Elsie Siemens, Mary Rosecrans, Ethel Lash, Bertha Starkweather and Olga Darch. Ladies are urged to make their reservations for October which will be the last party of 1970. October 21 is the date, 12:30 the time, the Fellowship Hall, the place. Hostesses for the afternoon will be Beverly Sinclair, Elsie Siemens, Rose Clark and Vera Stokes.

IF YOU HAVE HEARD the chatter of a typewriter recently at "Roberts Roost" on West Carmel Valley Road it was undoubtedly one of the many delightful guests who have visited Rosemary and Stan Roberts this summer. The warning sign, "Author at Work", could have referred to Mrs. Nadine Phinney of Hollywood. Formerly an assistant to producer Norman Jewison she has retired to write a cookbook about cooking "THE HARD WAY" or "From Scratch". It is the author's feeling that women, their husbands, and their families are tired of packaged minute meals and that they are more and more returning to the do-it-yourself-days of baking their own bread, canning, etc.Extensive traveling has uncovered recipes which include the art of soap making, and sun drying fruit, and vegetables. Needless to say she found Carmel Valley a gold mine for her research.

Pages for another book, a novel dealing with our future history, were added by Rosemary's brother, Dr. David J. Brandenburg and his wife, Penny, during their visit from Washington. Dr. Brandenburg heads the history department at the American University in Washington. Their daughter, Rosemary who had spent the summer with the Valley family, returned with her parents and brother, John, following a busy whirl of sightseeing and entertaining planned for the eastern guests and Stan's nephew, Brad Roberts of Los Angeles. Their visit coincided with a month's "vacation" for Stan who was recuperating from hand injuries received in an axe accident.

BACK TO SCHOOL NIGHT

Parents of Carmel High Students are reminded to reserve Wednesday, October 7, for the annual Back-to-School Night sponsored by the Padre Parents. Each year parents are given an opportunity to meet with the classroom teachers in the classes attended by their sons and daughters. Students will be asked to fill out a schedule for parents to follow, which they will bring home on the afternoon of the seventh. The time schedule for Back to School Night is as follows:

7:30 to 7:40 - Period 1; 7:45 to 7:55 - Period 2; 8:00 to 8:10 - Period 3; 8:15 to 8:25 - Period 4; 8:30 to 8:40 - Period 5; 8:45 to 8:55 - Period 6; 9:00 to 9:10 - Period 7.

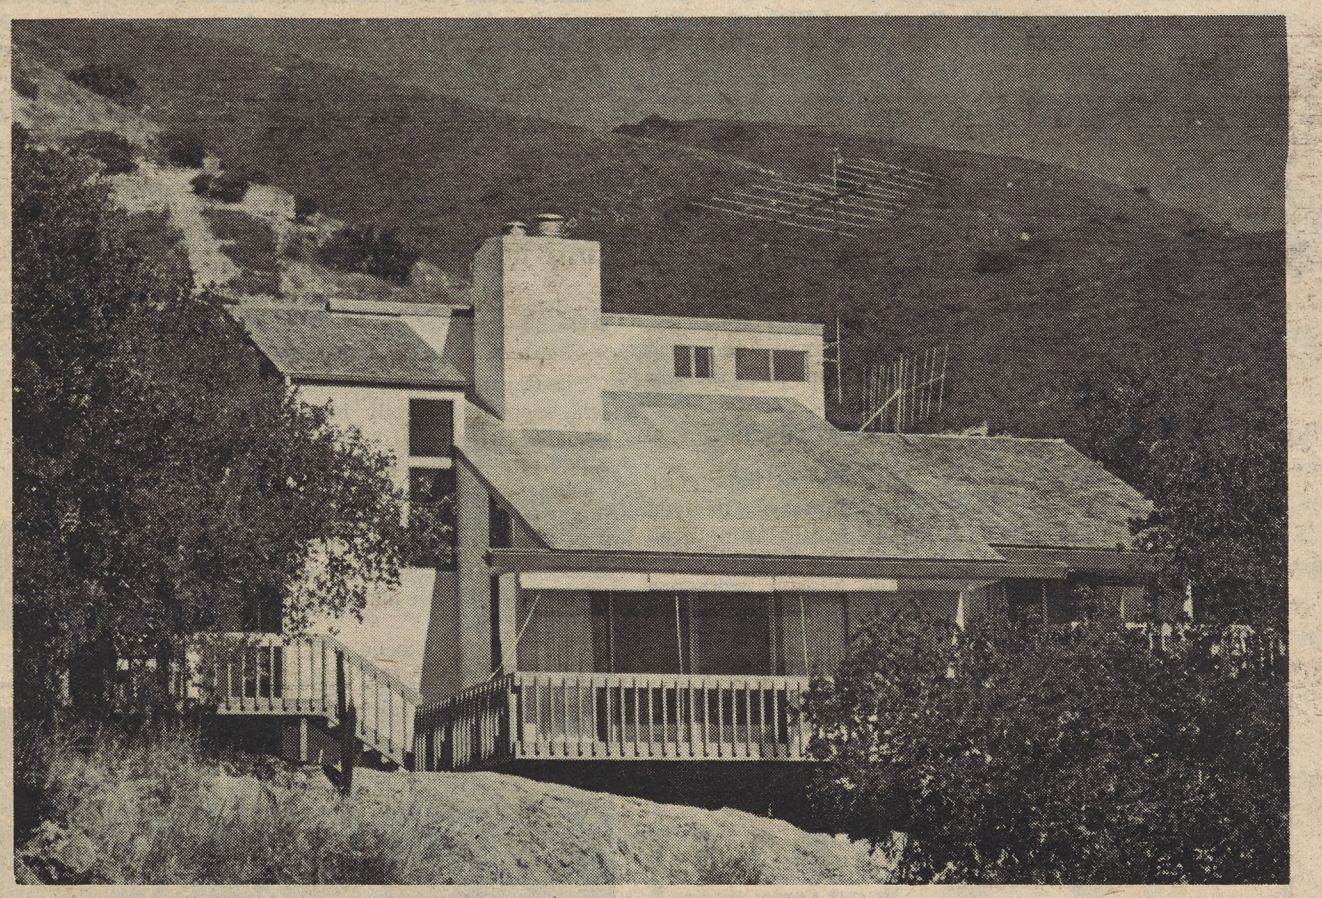
Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria following the class visitations. Yearly dues for the Padre Parents is one dollar per family and may be paid during the evening.

CARMEL VALLEY WOMEN'S CLUB

The annual Membership Tea of the Carmel Valley Women's Club will be held October 7 at the Community Center at 12:30 p.m. Members of the Board, who will serve as hostesses, wish to extend a cordial invitation to all women residents of the Valley to attend and members are encouraged to bring a guest.

Entertainment will feature the songs and patter of Jerry Winters and Sioux Scott. The couple are well known as former Valley residents and well known Peninsula night club entertainers.

Mrs. Mark Fields will introduce the fund raising program for the year which will begin October 1. The unique benefit is ...Project, Pyramid. It will begin with the eight members of the board entertaining six people each. The choice is their own, the more novel, the better. It may be at a coffee, bridge, luncheon, golf, tennis, shopping. Just a get together to do anything that you enjoy doing with your friends. You only officially participate as a guest once and only once as a hostess (but you are free to participate as many times as you like.) A dollar is collected from each which is mailed to the C.V.C.C. (Donations and entertaining expenses are tax deductible!) Within two weeks (after being entertained) it is your turn to entertain and you invite one less to your party than the one which you attended. Anyone having questions may check with Project Pyramid chairman, Dena Fields.



THE LA RANCHERIA ROAD HOME of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Sandgren delighted tour takers on the recent "TOUR 200" sponsored by the Women's Architectural League. Proceeds from the benefit sponsored by the Auxiliary to the Monterey Bay Chapter American Institute of Architects will be utilized for special architectural exhibits and community projects in the area of the local AIA chapter. Each of the eight residences on the Carmel Valley tour were designed by local members of the AIA. The Sandgren home was the work of Robert McIntyre. On hand to welcome tour guests was Mrs. F. Mack (Mary Agnes) Lansdowne, a La Rancheria neighbor of the Sandgrens.

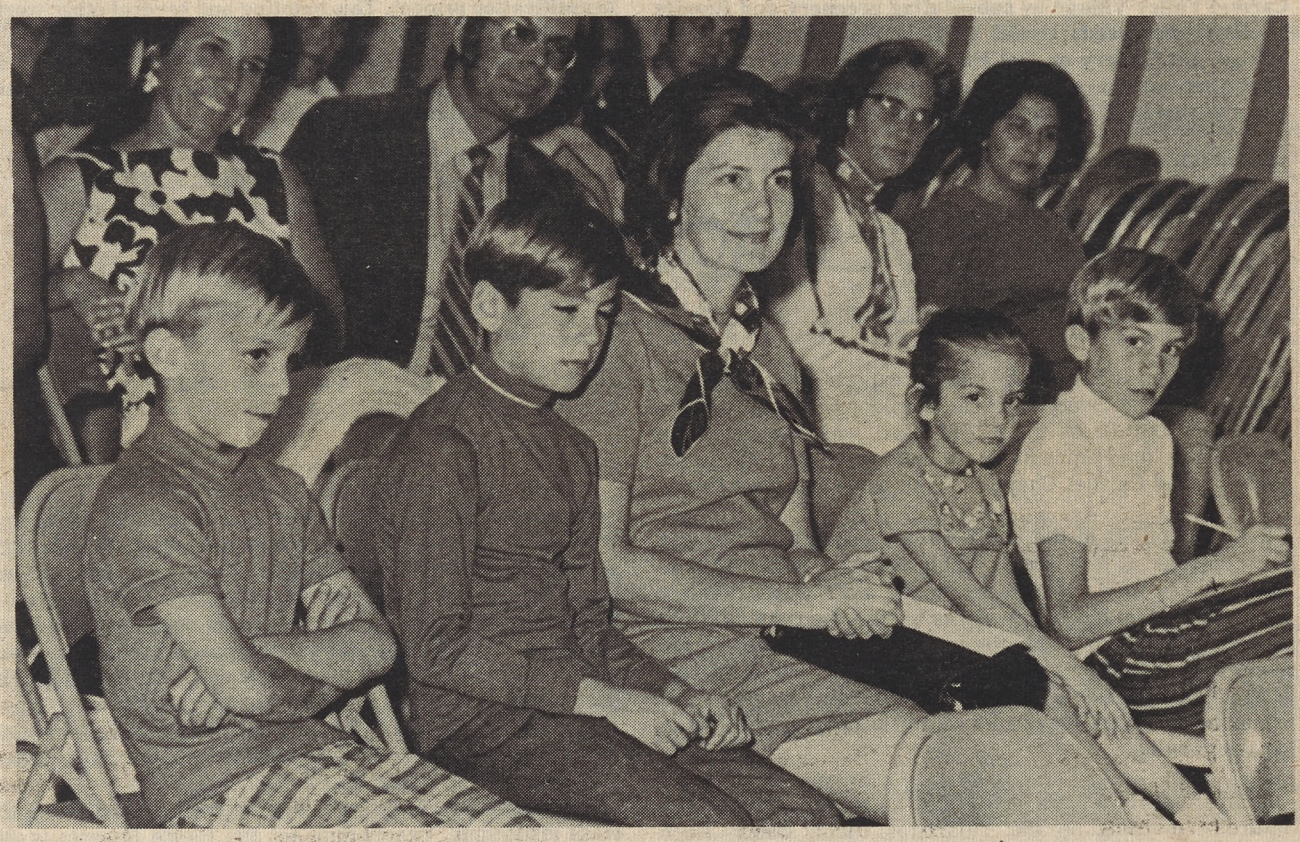
SCORES OF TULARCITOS PARENTS turned out for the first parents' club meeting of the year last week and a chance to greet principal Thomas Williams. Here Williams, coffee cup in hand, talks with Mr. and Mrs. Leon Mink, right, while Mrs. Williams and their son, Richard, listen in. In a brief, low-keyed talk to the parents, Williams noted that schools today are changing out of necessity. "We don't have any choice. When you know that the body of knowledge is doubling every 10 years, that whole disciplines and sciences will be developed that we don't even have names for yet ... the schools today are almost like the Model T compared to the 1970 cars -- we're hopelessly behind. But we're working as hard as we can." He urged parents to support the parents' club and take an active role in schools affairs.



THE WHOLE FAMILY turned out for Thomas Williams' first meeting with the Tularcitos parents' club. Mrs. Williams, center, is flanked by Donald and Richard on the left and Mary and David on the right. The family appearance was partly a matter of necessity. The Williams' have been living at Blue Sky Lodge and were without a babysitter. Determined to live within the Tularcitos district, they finally found a house last weekend on Holman Road, but probably won't be able to get moved in for another three weeks. Donald and Mary attend Tularcitos, while Richard and David go to Middle School.

Interim law governs trailers in Carmel Valley for 90 days

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors last week unanimously approved a 90-day interim ordinance requiring special permits for trailers and mobile homes in residential areas of Carmel Valley.

The measure could be extended for a year, following public hearings.

The temporary ordinance was introduced by Supervisor Willard T. Branson after the Planning Commission delayed until Nov. 12 a decision on banning new trailers in an area extending from Highway 1 to the Tularcitos Ranch.

Unlike the zoning under study, the interim ordinance passed last week is not a flat prohibition. Permits for trailers may be sought from the Planning Commission and if they are denied, appeals may be taken to the supervisors.

Carmelo Parents club to sponsor Barbecue Oct. 9

The Carmelo Parents Club will sponsor a family barbecue on Friday, Oct. 9, from 5 to 8 p.m. at the school.

Dinner will include hot dogs and beans, with a cake walk to provide families with dessert. There will also be a white elephant sale and door prizes.

The family barbecue will raise funds for a train trip to San Francisco which students are planning next spring.

Anyone with items to donate to the white elephant sale may contact the school office at 624-6638 or Mrs. Sue Sally Hale, 624-2149 in the evening.

Film of 19,000-mile ocean voyage at Sunset this weekend

"Many people spend their lives talking about what they'd like to do. If a man wants to climb mountains or to sail, he should climb mountains or sail!"

Hal Roth, the man who spoke those words, has done just that.

A photographer and magazine writer, he made a number of trips to the Sierra Nevada and wrote and illustrated a book on the John Muir Trail, "Pathway in the Sky," published by Howell-North.

And not long ago he returned to Sausalito with his wife Margaret aboard their 35-foot sloop "Whisper" from a 19-month Pacific voyage.

An award-winning, full-length feature film of the exciting voyage will be shown at Sunset Theater in Carmel on Friday and Saturday nights starting at 8:15 p.m.

The 19,000-mile odyssey took the Roths in a great circle to French Polynesia, the Cook Islands, Samoa, American Micronesia, Japan, and back by way of the Aleutian Islands and Alaska. It was reportedly the first time that a small sailing ship has made a complete circumnavigation of the Pacific basin. The Roths have been nominated for the Blue Water medal of the Cruising Club of America, the country's highest sailing award.

They had taken smaller ventures before -- in the West Indies, the Greek Isles, and in Scotland -- "but this was our most adventurous trip," said Roth.

The cruise was planned carefully for 15 months. "We took everything from spare sails to nose drops, from birthday candles to ukelele strings, and from penicillin to Stillson wrenches."

The voyagers began the trip with 30 cases of canned goods and lots of dried foods. "It's amazing how much you can put on the ship," remarked Mrs. Roth, who kept track of the supplies.

More foodstuffs were bought in the Cook Islands and in Japan. The Roths were given fish and fresh fruit at almost all of their 70 stops.

The sloop started out with 78 gallons of fresh water. Salt water was used for dishwashing, and instead of being salted, rice and potatoes were cooked in half sea water.

There was no electricity or refrigeration on board. "We used kerosene for cooking, lighting, and heating," said Roth.

There was only one emergency. Mrs. Roth caught her finger in the self-steering device and cut it to the bone.

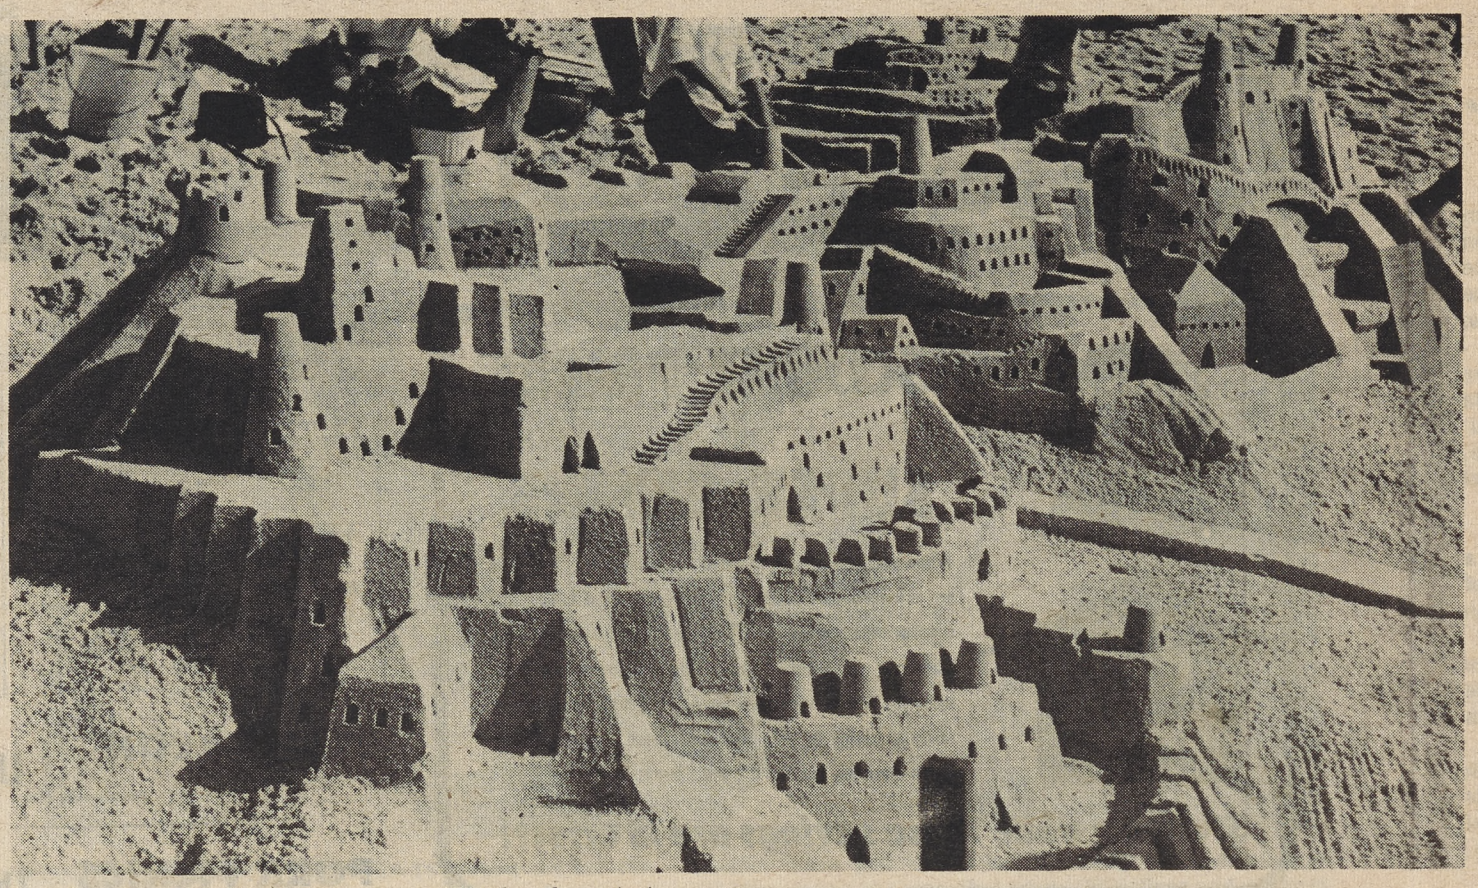
"The ship was rolling too much to sew it," her husband said, "so we pulled the edges of the wound together with butterfly bandages and bound up the injury until we got to Ketchikan and a doctor.

"Our most interesting experience was in the South Pacific at Abemama atoll in the Gilbert Islands," recalled the adventurer. "Only a dozen Europeans had been there since World War II and our yacht was the first that had ever called. We were taken to the chief's house and all the people in his small village came and asked us questions.

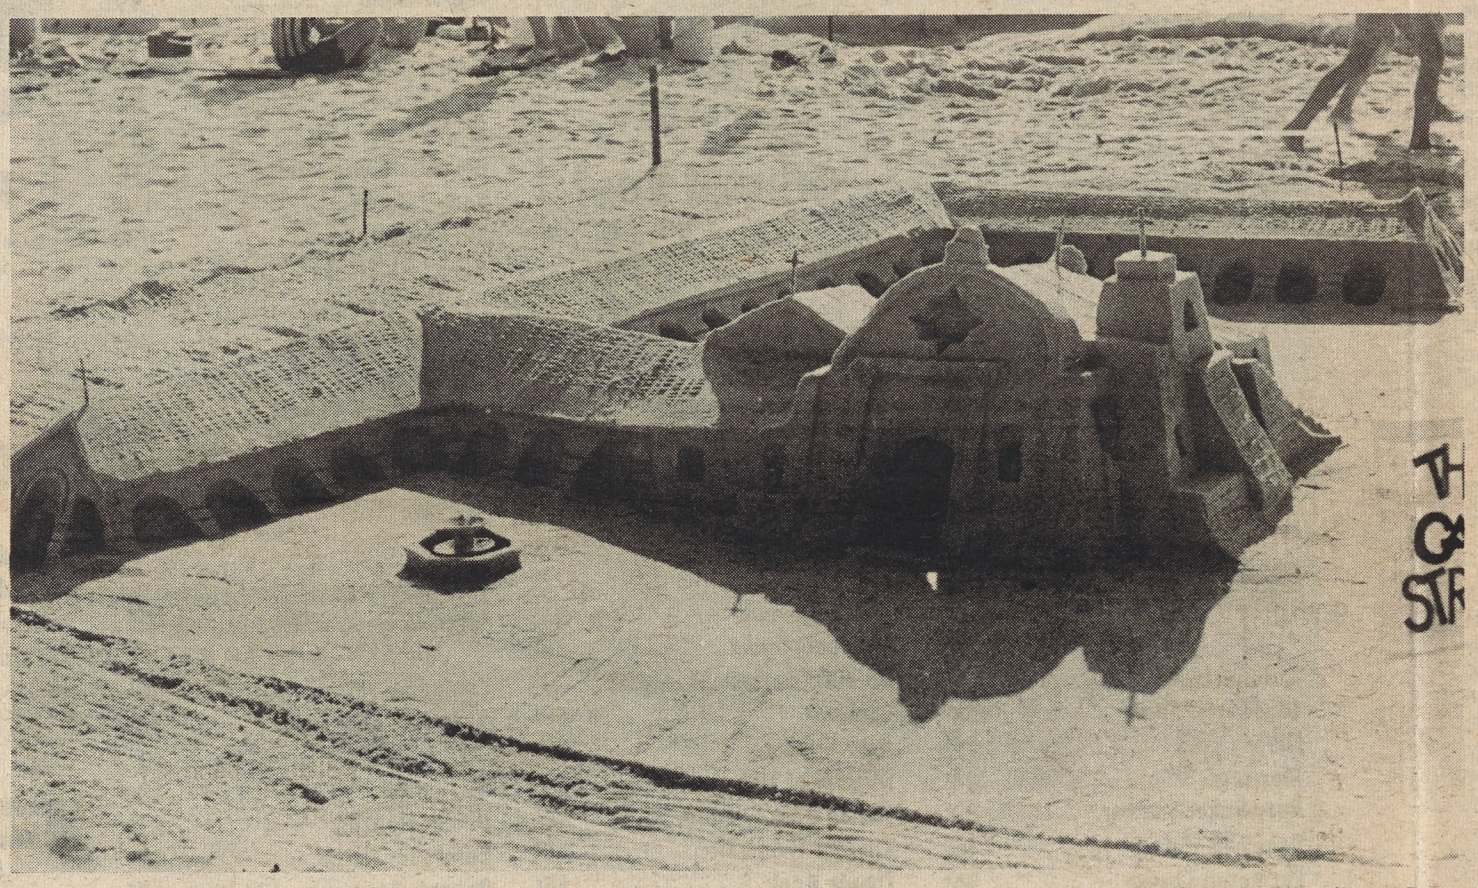
"Why had we come? Where had we come from? How many days' paddling was the last island? How were the storms beyond the horizon? What did we eat? How many coconuts did we carry?

"The questions of the Gilbertese told us more about them than our answers told them about us."

The Roths found they could live fully and quite happily for less than ten percent of what they spent in San Francisco. "The correlation between possessions and happiness is zero," added Mrs. Roth.



GRAND PRIZE WINNER at the Carmel Sandcastle contest Sunday was this elaborate castle, built by Ron Bender of San Jose and Rick Lesh of Los Angeles.



CALIFORNIA MISSION, a creation of Jeff Wilson, Suzy Perkins, Barkley Ferguson and Anne and Suzy McFarlane, won the Bicentennial Sandcastle Award.

Sallie Conn succeeds Marquard as president of Board of Realtors

Representing the Carmel Board of Realtors attending the annual convention of the 48,000-member California Real Estate Association Oct. 3-8 in San Francisco Hilton Hotel will be Mr. and Mrs. M.A. "Skip" Marquard, Mr. and Mrs. George Conn and Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McEwen.

Governor Ronald Reagan will be the keynote speaker Tuesday, followed the next day by his opponent for the governorship, Assemblyman Jesse Unruh, who will speak at a general session.

According to Marquard, president of the local board, there will be a variety of conferences on many specialized real estate subjects, each featuring leaders in that field as speakers or panelists.

Members of the Carmel Board of Realtors have elected their first woman president in the 25-year history of the organization.

Mrs. George (Sallie) Conn of the Conn Real Estate office in Carmel has been elected president for 1971.

Elected to serve with Mrs. Conn are Charles Strathmeyer, vice-president; L.R. (Buck) Bemis, secretary-treasurer; M.A. (Skip) Marquard, director, 1 year; Rod Santos, director, 2 years; Carolyn Vogel, director, 3 years; Eleanor Cetin, director, 1 year; Robert Weir, salesman director, 1 year.

Members of the 1971 board will be installed at a dinner-dance at Rancho Canada Golf Club, Thursday, Oct. 15.

Wine tasting, art show Sunday for Children's Home Society

The annual Children's Home Society wine tasting and art exhibit will take place Sunday at the Beach Club, Pebble Beach, from 5 until 7 p.m.

Benefiting from the innovative efforts of the Punch and Judy chapter of Children's Home Society are natural and adoptive parents who are in need of professional counseling, and the children who find permanent adoptive homes through the help of the statewide agency.

Chairman for the wine tasting gala this year is Mrs. Donald Ostergard of Pebble Beach. Her co-chairman for the event is Mrs. James Bell of Carmel. The art exhibit and the door prize, an original work of art, will be furnished by the Galerie de Tours, Carmel and San Francisco.

Tickets for the party may be obtained from active and junior members of the auxiliary or by calling Mrs. Ostergard (372-2281).

The Rhyming Philosopher

SUPERSTITION

Old superstitions, early taught, control our daily acts, from nostroms as a last resort to fables guised as facts; if ground-hogs see the sun about on February Two we all believe without a doubt more winter cold is due.

We're still dismayed when salt gets spilled, or black cats cross our path, a sign that someone close gets killed or feels the Devil's wrath.
It's indiscrete to elevate umbrellas in a room, and shoes upon the table state your luck has lost its bloom.

A scarlet rag around the neck is said to cure a cold, and mustard plasters sure will check a backache, so I'm told. A red-hot poultice on the chest cures anything inside, so grandma's remedies were best --- until the patient died.

Though doctors cost a lot today and hospitals come high, I'd rather have those bills to pay than bear the cost to die. Old superstitions
I eschew, except there's just one catch:
I still respect that old taboo --- don't light three on a match!

CVPOA to discuss trailer ordinance Thursday night

The board of directors of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association will hold its regular monthly meeting tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Community Center.

President Ed Lee said there will be discussion of a proposed ordinance to protect the Carmel River, as well as the "J" zone ordinance which would prohibit the use of trailers and mobile homes as permanent living quarters.

Frank Bresh, appointed to a county-wide committee that is trying to draft a hillside conservation ordinance, will report on the work of that group.

The meeting is open to the public.

THE TOWN CRIER

Among those who have been nominated for a one-year term on the board of governors of the Visitors and Convention Bureau of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce are Eileen Bulmer of Los Laureles Lodge, Ed Haber of the Carmel Valley Golf and County Club and Nick Lombardo, owner of Rancho Canada Golf Course.

Candidates representing all areas of the Peninsula have been nominated, and winners will be announed after ballots are cast by members of the Visitors and Convention Bureau.

Members of the board for the past year include Lombardo, John Harrison, Robert Stanton and George Forbes of Carmel Valley.

The California-American Water Company is sponsoring a college scholarship program for children of employees and of customers directly served by the company. Application blanks and information are available at all high schools.

The program has been in effect since 1961. This year the American Water Works Foundation, which administers the scholarship program, awarded 50 scholarships, 23 to children of employees and 27 to children of customers.

The awards are based on the contestants' performance in the College Entrance Examination Board test. Judging is done by a committee of educators selected by Educational Testing Service, which supervises the scholarship program.

Men who would like to master the art of gourmet cooking will have an opportunity to learn culinary secrets at a two-session class for men only on Oct. 6 and 12 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Rancho Canada Golf Club. The gourmet cooking course is sponsored by Pacific Gas and Electric Company.

At the first session, Walter Rodman of the California Beef Council will discuss cuts and quality of beef, and PG&E home economist Gloria Pieretti will demonstrate cooking and barbecuing techniques. Dan Mirassou of Mirassou Winery in San Jose will be featured at the second session and recipes using wines in cooking and sauces will be shown.

The class is presented free of charge, but reservations must be made in advance with Wayne McNown at PG&E, 375-9811.

County spending $120,735 on Valley law enforcement

Supervisor Willard T. Branson has released the following statement regarding the cost of law enforcement in Carmel Valley:

As a further report to the citizens of Carmel Valley, relative to County services provided for this area, as well as the cost for same, I would like to share with them the cost of law enforcement for the Valley.

At the present time, we are averaging 4.5 deputies per day which (figuring an 8 hour day) provides 36 deupty hours per day. On the basis of 365 days of deputy time or 13,140 hours at the 1969-70 budget figure of $6.12 per hour, this comes to a total of $80,416.80 for the deputies alone.

The sheriff's office total operational budget for this year was $2,121,919.00, this includes the Sheriff's budget, Jail budget, Detention Camp budget, Farm budget. These budgets include all the back up people necessary to keep a deputy on the road. If we take this total figure and divide it by the 84 people we have patrolling this gives us a total cost of $25,261.00 per man, and this times 4.5 men operating in Carmel Valley, gives us a total cost for law enforcement in the Valley of $113,675.00. This cost, incidentally, for the 1970-71 fiscal year will be $120,735.00 due to increases in our budgets.

We feel that the above are realistic figures to use in estimating cost for the Valley as we not only have the deputies on the road, but their activities also involve the aforementioned functions.

New program in Carmel schools to stimulate love of music

The Carmel school district is about to start a new elementary school music program that will have all students in the third, fourth and fifth grades tootling away on recorders.

The basic idea, music teacher John Farr told members of the school board last week, is to develop a music program that will reach the "80 percent" of elementary students who would normally never learn to play a musical instrument or to read music.

By making recorders available to everyone, and allowing for daily practice sessions of 10 to 15 minutes, Farr is confident that many students who were previously "non-musical" will be motivated to try another instrument or choral singing.

And at the very least, they should have fun playing the recorder and graduate from the fifth grade with a rudimentary knowledge of how to read music.

Farr demonstrated just how simple this all is by handing out plastic recorders to school board members and school officials seated near them, including Supt. Harris Taylor. Bouncing about with puckish glee, Farr showed them the basic fingering technique and then -- presto! -- out came the warbling strains of "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

To get the new program launched, the district has purchased 700 soprano recorders, one for every child in the third, fourth and fifth grades. Gradually tenor recorders will be added at the fourth grade level and alto and bass recorders in the fifth grade, so that three years from now parents can expect to hear fifth grade classes playing pieces by Bach using all four recorders.

At present, Farr is teaching the classroom teachers how to play the recorder so they can stay a jump ahead of their students. Regular teachers will conduct the daily recorder sessions, with Farr coming in once a week to keep things progressing properly.

While it won't be absolutely mandatory for a child to participate in the recorder program, it is assumed that almost all will want to. And since children will be allowed to take their recorders home to practice, parents can expect to hear a lot of "Mary Had a Little Lamb" in the near future, followed later on by the catchy hit, "Raindrops Falling on My Head."

All-English Horse Show Sunday

An All-English Horse Show will be staged at the Carmel Valley Trail & Saddle Club grounds on Sunday, sponsored by the local Horsemans Assn.

Trophies will go to all first place winners, and ribbons for all other places up to fifth.

Events will get underway starting at 8 a.m. and will continue through the day.

Judging the events will be Miss Wendy Machin of Petaluma.

PADRE TRAILS CAMERA CLUB TO SEE NATURE SLIDES

Color slides on nature subjects will be judged at the meeting of the Padre Trails Camera Club on Thursday at 8:00 p.m., in Brey Hall at Carmel High School. Each member may present four slides. Also, members are reminded to submit at this time eligible slides for the Picture of the Year contest. Following these two judgings there will be a program of color slides.

A field trip is planned for Sunday, October 18. Mark your calendar. More details on this at the October 1 meeting.

Padre Trails Camera Club welcomes to its activities all interested persons. For more information, please call Thomas Hardy, 375-8586.

'Virginia Woolf' is theatre in the raw

A wry and electric evening in the theatre is being offered by the Community Theatre, when its production of Edward Albee's award winning drama, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" opens the Fall season at the Circle Theatre in Carmel on Friday.

The play is unnerving, hilarious and terrifying. The Community Theatre does not recommend it for children, nor for adults who are finicky or easily shocked. Much of it is raw and heady stuff.

Martha, middle-aged daughter of a college president, cannot forgive her husband-teacher George for having failed to develop in her father's image. At a faculty get-together, lasting from 2 a.m. until dawn in their campus cottage, Martha tortures George with an ingenuity that makes Medea look like the all-American housewife.

Vee Mariano makes her first appearance for Community Theatre in the difficult and demanding role of "Martha". Her background covers over 20 years with various acting companies all over the United States. Bob Lotz will be seen as "George", a challenging role unlike any he has ever performed. His many stellar roles in local theatre has made him a most respected actor.

"Nick", a young biology instructor, will be played by newcomer Rick Shoup, whose most recent credits include "West Side Story" and "Death of A Salesman" at MPC. His bland wife, "Honey", will be portrayed by Wendy Grissim. Wendy has many performances to her credit, including the record-breaking "Me and Thee", in which she won the Golden Bough Award as best actress in a supporting comedy role during the 1968-69 season.

Michael Keller is directing this tale of turbulent wedlock with a care to retaining its balance of ferocity, compassion and entertaining wit. "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" will play Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through November 6. Because the play is of more than usual length, all performances will begin at 8:00 p.m. Reservations are recommended by calling the theatre box office at 624-2669.

Sunrise..... to Sunset

Dorothy Bowman

I have just scanned our October schedule for Sunset Theater and the events you've all been waiting for are about to begin, with a burst of glory; the Symphony, the Music Societies, Travel Films, Lectures, all will grace our stage this fall.

The Symphony's Opening Night, October 5, will usher in the Music Season, The Chamber Music Society will follow on October 9, and Carmel Music Society presents the first piano concert of the year, October 22.

October 2 and 3, initiates the ever-increasing interest in travel films, audio-visual lectures, and documentaries. "The Whisper Pacific Voyage" explores the world of sailing and arouses the keen interest of our many boat and yacht owners in the area, as Hal Roth personally relates this exciting adventure on both Friday and Saturday evenings at Sunset Auditorium.

Knowing how many of our Carmelites look forward to new travels, you will be pleased to hear Explorama begins their season with an outstanding film entitled, "Russia in the 70's", consecutively showing on October 16 & 17 so by all means, set one of these evenings aside for this fine Travel Film, featuring Clay Francisco, producer and narrator. This film brings into sharp focus the changes that have occurred in the last decade, as well as towns and villages that have changed little in hundreds of years. Since our world is rapidly becoming one world, a film of this scope is not only entertaining, but should be most enlightening.

We are waiting for the Barati Series to begin this coming Tuesday evening, however, unless a great number of citizens arrive this opening lecture, it will be necessary to drop this very fine program, and it will be very difficult to convince the University of California at Santa Cruz, we can again set up a class. To my knowledge, this program has never before been offered on the Coast, is most unusual in its content, and should have a very special appeal to many of our creative artists and musicians in the area. Let us keenly hope "A Musician Looks at the Arts" will be a winner in Carmel, and we shall see at least fifty of you out next Tuesday evening.

It is such a pleasure and a great help in programming to have Mrs. Melvin, executive director of the Arts Coordinating Council working in our midst and her many willing volunteers, all of whom give of their time to help promote the many art activities here on the Peninsula. A special thanks in behalf of the Sunset Staff and the City of Carmel.

I would also like to take this space to remind you to see Mrs. Violet Beahan in the Symphony office to purchase your tickets for the Beethoven Concert at the Mission Bascilica for the October 17 Concert. Our maestro is such a dedicated musician, and everyone, I mean everyone, should really support his efforts, and I might say also, I have never known a more dedicated promoter for any program than Gerry Reeves. She has expended hours on this beautiful finale to the Bi-Centennial. Our thanks to her from all of the community, if I may take this privilege. I enjoyed working with Gerry on the Bi-Centennial Committee.

The strange story of a Boxer named Bouncer

Here's one for Ma Bell's scrapbook ...

It all started three weeks ago, when a year-and-a-half-old boxer named Bouncer began producing her first litter of puppies at the home of the Leon Minks on Sage Road.

The first pup was born outdoors, unbeknown to Mrs. Mink, who ordered Bouncer into the house a short time later. Bouncer took to her bed and almost immediately began giving birth to eight more puppies.

But before her labor resumed, Bouncer carefully put the red receiver from the telephone in the Minks' bedroom in her box. She kept it there, protectively licking it, as puppy after puppy arrived.

It wasn't until the Minks discovered puppy number nine outdoors that they realized with shock and amusement that Bouncer had been substituting the telephone receiver for the missing puppy.

Pup and mother were reunited. But that didn't end the story.

Three days later the Minks took the boxer pups to have their tails docked. When they returned, they discovered Bouncer had piled up an extra soft bed for her offspring and there, in the center, was lovingly placed the telephone receiver. Bouncer had neatly severed the cord, leaving only a stub, just the way she had done for the rest of her brood.

The receiver was put back on the phone. Bouncer retrieved it. It was put back again. Bouncer counted noses, found one missing, and back went the receiver to the puppy box.

When the phone rings, Bouncer races to get it first, obviously figuring that her errant puppy is squalling again and needs attention.

So if you call the Minks, and are greeted by a clatter and the sound of heavy breathing, followed by a slurp or two, don't be alarmed. It's just Bouncer looking after her strange red puppy.

SUZANNE LANE and Newell Tarrant appear in a scene in 'Cat on a Hot Tin Roof'.

'Cat on a Hot Tin Roof' to be staged at NPGS Theatre

Torment and frustration dog the lives of Maggie and her husband, Brick, portrayed here by Suzanne Lane and Newell Tarrant, in a penetrating study of marriage on the rocks in "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof," the Pulitzer prize-winning play by Tennessee Williams.

This moving drama is being presented by Naval Postgraduate School's Little Theatre Oct. 9 and 10, and the following week on Oct. 16 and 17 in King Hall. All gates will be open to the public the evenings of the performances.

Reservations may be made by calling 373-1616. Discounts are available for groups of 10 or more, students holding current identification cards, and military personnel and dependents. Tickets are in great demand, so the public is urged to reserve seats early for this exciting production.

Zodiac luncheon next Wednesday at C. V. Golf & Country Club

The ninth in the series of fashion show luncheons, "Fashion Signs of the Zodiac" will be given Wednesday, Oct. 7 at 12:30, in the main clubhouse of the Carmel Valley Golf & Country Club.

The shows are emceed and produced by Dorothy (Mrs. David) Stevens.

A special feature of this show will be apparel for the Autumn Years, together with a talk by LeRoy Wiley, manager of the Park Lane Health Club, "Put Spring in Your Step." He'll show how to keep fit and trim, through sensible exercise and eating programs.

The Zodiac sign of Libra will be accented by complimentary birthday cocktails and birthday gift drawings, for those whose sign is Libra.

Luncheon is at 12:30, the fashion show at 1:15 and the feature presentation at 1:45. The public is invited to attend these shows, based on "Astrology for the 20th Century" - the theme, "It's a good sign!"

Cleveland Amory to appear during coming SPCA events

The Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is sponsoring two special events to celebrate World Day for Animals and the Feast of St. Francis, patron saint of all animals.

On Sunday at 3 p.m., a Blessing of the Animals will be held at the Society's La Vega Verde Shelter on the Monterey-Salinas Highway oppostie Laguna Seca Raceway.

The ecumenical blessing will be given by the Rev. Father Lawrence H. Farrell and the Rev. David Hill. All animals, large and small and their owners and friends are invited to attend. There is no charge, but all animals must be kept under their owner's control.

On Monday at 3:30 p.. the Society will host a benefit champagne party at the Rancho Canada Golf Club in Carmel Valley. Special guest is Cleveland Amory, internationally acclaimed wit, critic and author. Amory is active in humane work and heads The Fund for Animals, a national humane organization. He will speak to the guests on the subject, "A Spark of Compassion."

Tickets are $7.50 each and benefit the S.P.C.A. For further information, please call the Benefit Chairman, 624-6684.

HOME AFTER 19,000 MILE ODYSSEY: Hal and Margaret Roth relax on their 35-foot sloop after returning from 19-month Pacific voyage. The story of the exciting trip will be shown at Sunset Theater Friday and Saturday evenings.

CLAUDINE CARLSON, Paris-born mezzo-soprano is soloist with the Monterey County Symphony in their first concerts of the season this weekend.

"WINDY NIGHT" is the title of this painting by Joyce Jenkins, who will have a one-woman show opening at the Village Art Gallery on Delfino Place this weekend. The well-known artist, who lives on Paso Hondo in Carmel Valley, will be honored at a reception from 3 to 7 p.m. Sunday at the gallery. Her paintings, which often have a somewhat unreal or ethereal quality, have been exhibited all over California. Mrs. Jenkins studied at the Houston Art Museum, Baylor University and the Art Center School in Los Angeles. She has also studied with many prominent artists, including Fredric Taubes of New York, Joseph Silhavy of Prague, Bennett Bradbury of Laguna Beach and Carmel Highlands, and John Cunningham of Carmel.

Exciting Can-Am coming to Laguna Seca Oct. 16

Laguna Seca Raceway officials today announced that they are receiving entries for what is expected to be one of the most exciting racing events held in its long prestigious history.

The Monterey-Castrol Grand Prix, October 16-18, brings to California the 1970 Canadian-American Challenge Cup Series for Group 7 unlimited engined sports cars. These machines are capable of speeds in excess of 200 mph, and will be traveling 80 laps over the 1.9 mile Laguna Seca circuit.

Many top drivers will be competing for the $76,500 purse. Among them, Denis Hulme the current points leader in a McLaren M8D. Also starting in the 32 car field will be the new BRM 154, piloted by Canadian George Eaton, Peter Revson's L&M Lola T-220, and Jim Hall's revolutionary "vacuum cleaner" Chaparral 2J. These teams are always strong threats for the winner's laurells.

Can-Am qualifying starts on Friday, October 16 and continues on Saturday. The Monterey-Castrol Grand Prix will start at 1:15 p.m. on Sunday. There will also be six regional championship races during the weekend for production, formula, sedan, and sports racing cars.

Valley Chamber regrouping to be considered Thursday

When the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce meets on Thursday this week, the main item on the agenda will be a discussion of the feasibility of the regrouping of the entire Valley within the present organization.

Emphasis will be placed on three points: finances, administration, advertising and public relations.

A special committee has been studying aspects of the problems involved, and will report on its findings.

The speaker at this week's meeting will be Sheriff Jack Davenport, who will report on measures taken by the county to curb vandalism in Carmel Valley.

The meeting is scheduled to start at noon at Rancho Canada Golf Club.

BY MRS. B.C. FORRESTER

Now that it is rattle snake time, now that our neighbor, Patrick Fitzgerald has grabbed a gun and shot one lying still behind him, and discovered the reptile carried ten rattles, one for each year of his life, we think it high time to tell you how to cook the flesh of this varmint. But the rattler was not always considered a "varmint". When our ancestors pioneered in the West they found tribes of Indians who revered the snake and feared to kill him because of the revenge he or his family might take. I quote no less an authority than "The Golden Bough" as follows:

"The Seminole Indians spared the rattlesnake because they feared the soul of the dead rattlesnake would incite its kinsfolk to take vengeance. The Delaware Indians also paid great respect to the rattlesnake, whom they called their grandfather, and they would on no account destroy one of the reptiles. They said the rattlesnake guarded them and gave them notice of impending danger by his rattle, and that if they were to kill a rattlesnake the rest of the species would hear of it and bit the Indians in revenge. Few Cherokees will venture to kill a rattlesnake unless they cannot help it, and even then they must atone for the crime by craving pardon of the snake's ghost, either in their own person or through the mediation of a priest according to a set formula."

The Indian of the West held somewhat similar beliefs, although it cannot be said the pioneers adopted them. To the early settlers the rattlesnake was poison and must be killed. They went so far as to eat the flesh of the snake, which when highly spiced is very much like similarly spiced eel.

The pioneer of Oregon did not bring with them much in the way of spices. Salt and pepper, milk and butter, supplied most of the seasoning. Their usual way of preparing rattlesnake meat was to cut the meat into small squares after removing the skin and putting it into boiling salted water to stew for a few minutes. When flesh became slightly tender, they took it out of the water, placed it in a heavy granite utensil, covered it with butter then with cold milk, pepper and salt and let it simmer until it was tender as snake meat is apt to get.

A rattler of good size would be sufficient for a good meal for a family of four if served with potatoes or corn. I have a great uncle who once declared he could eat "the stuff, washed down with a full coffee cup of whiskey". But Willie was an Indian Scout and was able to stand coffee cups of whiskey.

But when spices penetrated the West, as they did very shortly, it was a different story, a delicious meal could be prepared from the rattlesnake, although many women disliked being told they were eating rattler meat.

RATTLESNAKE WITH MUSTARD SAUCE:

2 tbsp. butter
dash of pepper
1 tsp. salt
¾ cup milk
1 tbsp. mustard (mixed)
1 tbsp. flour
1 egg yolk
1 egg yolk
1½ tsp. vinegar

Melt butter in double boiler. Stir in pepper, mustard, flour and combine egg yolk and milk. Cook, stirring until smooth and thickened -- about 5 minutes. Remove. Add vinegar just before serving. Pour over snake meat.

For better flavour, simmer minced onions in butter. Add to mixed egg yolk and milk.

But I don't assume any of you will rush right out and shoot the head off a rattler, just to try these recipes.

Young swimmers in 'Aqua-Spectacular'

MAKING A BIG SPLASH in AAU synchronized swimming championships even though they are not yet old enough for senior competition is this young quartette of Carmel Valley students, members of the Cypress Swim Club. The award-winning foursome: Gerri Brandly, Debbie Jameson, Kathryn Blevens, and Stacy Larsen, placed third in Pacific AAU and Region XIII Jr. Olympics, and followed this a few months later by winning first-place gold medals in the Far Western AAU 12-and-under team championships at Paso Robles. They will appear locally as the Cypress Swim Club presents its sixth annual fundraising "Aqua-Spectacular, the Greatest Show on Water," at Rancho Del Monte Country Club at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 10, and Sunday, Oct. 11. Joining them for the benefit performance in addition to their Cypress team-mates will be the National AAU synchronized swimming champions, the Santa Clara Aquamaids, and Barbara Cooney of the San Francisco Merionettes, plus a special "surprise guest duet" from the Walnut Creek Aquanuts.
